

THERE'S NEVER BEEN a BETTER TIME to SECURE YOUR FAMILY

Home Security and Fire Detection Choices Are Myriad

Lots of people are choosing to get a home security system these days. In tight economic times, thieves grow more desperate and home invasions rise.

Installing a security system can help protect your home and give you reassurance that someone is watching over your family. Insurance companies also approve of most systems and award homeowners with discounts on policy costs. Depending on your home, type of system and location, some of the insurance discounts offer a fairly quick payback.

There are a variety of systems available today. Some are wired, others wireless. Important features to consider are video monitoring, fire and CO<sup>2</sup> detection, remote access, and sump pump & temperature monitoring.

There are even options for older adults with limited mobility that reminds them to take medications. If something happens – a medication is missed – adult children are immediately notified so that they may check up on Mom or Dad.

The choices in home security and fire detection are endless. That's why it's a good idea to contact a local business who can work with you to meet your particular needs.
